

I. Statement of Corporate Privacy Principles

At John Hancock Life Insurance Company of New York (John Hancock New York), the privacy and protection of personal information is important to us. As a provider of financial products and services, the collection and use of customers' personal information is fundamental to our day-to-day business operations. John Hancock New York is also concerned about the personal information of its employees and representatives. Therefore, we have established this Statement of Corporate Privacy Principles to govern the actions of the John Hancock New York employees and representatives as they relate to the collection, use, retention and disclosure of personal information. Each John Hancock New York employee and representative must abide by our commitment to privacy in the handling of personal information.

We are committed to providing quality financial products and services in a manner that fosters trust and confidence among our customers, employees and representatives. We adhere to the following principles when dealing with personal information:

- maximize fairness in our use of personal information
- minimize intrusiveness
- protect privacy and confidentiality
- maintain accurate records
- provide accessibility to our privacy policies and customer information when appropriate
- comply with the applicable laws and regulations in the jurisdictions in which we do business.

II. Customer Privacy Notice

Pursuant to the U.S. Financial Services Modernization Act, John Hancock New York is required to provide all of its new and existing customers with the following "Customer Privacy Notice." This notice describes the privacy policies and practices of the John Hancock companies, including John Hancock New York, regarding the information we collect about customers, with whom that information is shared and how it is safeguarded. This "Customer Privacy Notice" is provided on behalf of the John Hancock companies listed in the notice and their employees as well as agents acting on their behalf. Each John Hancock New York employee and agent must abide by the privacy practices described in the "Customer Privacy Notice."

Customer Privacy Notice

OUR PRIVACY COMMITMENT TO YOU

Your trust is important to us. It is one of our most valuable assets. One way we earn your trust is by protecting your personal information. We will only use your information to do business with you, and as permitted or required by law. We will not sell or share your information with third parties for their marketing purposes.

Why Are You Receiving This Notice?

The law requires us to provide this notice to you annually. It describes our privacy policy and how we handle your information.

How Do We Protect And Share The Information We Have Collected About You?

We have safeguards in place to protect your personal information. We train our associates to respect your information and to keep it safe. We take action against those associates who do not follow our privacy rules relating to both past and current customers.

Your information is shared with associates when their jobs require it to process and service your contracts, benefits or accounts.

We share your information with third parties we have contracted with to provide services on your behalf. These parties are contractually bound to only use your information to perform those services. They are required to keep your information safe and may not use it for their marketing purposes.

We share your information to conduct routine or required activities like audits and tax filings. We also share your information with law enforcement or regulatory authorities when required by law.

We will not share your information within the John Hancock family of companies to provide you with offers for other John Hancock products or services unless you ask us to do so. We comply with restrictions set by regulatory authorities on our use of customer information to market or sell other John Hancock products to you.

Can You Opt Out?

Companies that sell or share your information for a third party's marketing purposes must offer customers an opt out program.

We do not sell or share your information with third parties for their marketing purposes or for any reason not allowed by law. So, an opt out program is not needed or required.

Why Do We Collect Your Information?

Collecting information about you helps us provide you with quality products and services.

We get most of your information from you. That information may include:

- Personal: name, address, email address, telephone number, date of birth, social security number and place of employment
- Financial: income, assets, banking and investment preferences
- Health: medical, health related habits (only if you apply for insurance or make a claim)
- Other: instructions to process your requests, etc.

We may also get information from third parties. For instance, your insurance agent, broker, registered representative or financial advisor, consumer reporting agencies, medical providers and insurance support agencies such as the Medical Information Bureau, Inc. (MIB) may share information with us.

What Is Our Online Privacy Policy?

You may read our Online Privacy Policy at www.johnhancock.com.

How Can You Review Your Information?

Generally, you have the right to review personal information we have about you. Requests to review your personal information must be made in writing and signed by you. The request must include your full name, address, product type and policy, contract or account number. If you believe information we have is incorrect, you may write us and request a correction. If we do not agree to your requested correction, you may write us to dispute our decision. We will keep all of your correspondence in our files. See "Contacting Us" below for address information.
